Open Studios are an opportunity to explore questions around teaching and learning through reviewing documentation with a wide range of educators. They are also a way to learn to engage in more effective documentation.

Join us for an Open Studio with Greg Gomez, Wheelock arts faculty member. Greg will present his current thinking about visual communication and use examples from the arts and advertising. We will also meet in small teacher-directed groups to discuss current documentation projects.

Let us know if you would like to bring work-in-progress to share in a small group.

Refreshments provided!
